

From the Pantry:

Almond extract
Apples
Balsamic vinegar
Baking soda
Baking powder
Barbecue sauce
Bay leaves
Beans (dried and canned)
Bouillon (beef, chicken, and vegetable)
Brown rice
Brown sugar
Canned cream soup
Canned tomatoes
Canned tuna fish
Carrots
Cocoa powder
Cold cereal – Cheerios
Cooking sprays
Cornmeal
Cornstarch
Crackers
Dried fruit
Dried herbs: basil, oregano, thyme, rosemary,
dill, cilantro, tarragon, chives
Dried spices: cinnamon, nutmeg, cumin, paprika, mustard, ginger, allspice, cayenne
pepper
French-fried onions
Garlic
Ginger
Honey
Hot sauce
Strawberry Jam
Ketchup
Kosher salt
Lemons
Maple syrup
Mayonnaise
Noodles

Nutmeg
Nuts – Walnuts, pecans
Oatmeal
Olive oil
Onions
Penne Pasta
Peanut butter
Peppercorns
Powdered sugar
Prepared mustard
Potatoes, russet
Potatoes, small red
Red wine vinegar
Semisweet chocolate chips
Solid shortening
Soy sauce
Tomato paste
Unbleached white flour
Vanilla
Vegetable oil
White sugar:
White wine vinegar
Worcestershire sauce
Yeast

From the Refrigerator / Freezer:

Milk
Eggs
Shredded Cheddar Cheese
Lettuce
Carrots
Cucumbers
Green Beans
Bread
Summer Squash
Mushrooms
Peas
Chicken
Ground Beef

What's for Dinner? (Diane's)

Time: 5 Minutes

Objective: Using the provided list of food items, determine how many possible dinner options you have.

Instructions: List the ingredients required for each separate recipe.

Assume you have the correct amount needed to complete the task.

Work together as a group.

---

Follow-up Questions:

How many different recipes were created in total using the first approach?

How many recipes are created using the second approach?

What 21st century skills were used to do the activity?

Which approach is more fun?

How much creativity would you need for the second approach?

If you memorized the recipes, would you be a chef?

If you write a business plan, are you an entrepreneur?